Because all weather is ① interconnected, a change in one area affects other areas. Today, scientists collect information worldwide so that they can understand and predict changes in the weather more ② accurately. Due to technological advances in the last several decades, scientists can now gather detailed information on cloud cover, precipitation, temperature changes, wind speed and direction, and energy from both the sun and earth. The collection of data ③ reveals some interesting facts. For example, winds in one region are accompanied by ④ similar winds in another; therefore, if north winds are extremely cold in one part of the world, south winds are abnormally warm in another part. Since winds affect precipitation, changes in wind patterns ⑤ influence the amount of rainfall.

* precipitaion: 강수(량)

[27~30] 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오

27. Modern-day men tend to spend a lot of time and money on their _____. Today, global sales of male grooming products bring in billions of dollars a year, and the industry is not expected to slow down. However, modern man's interest in grooming and cosmetic products is not a new phenomenon. Men in Egypt had their own makeup boxes that comprised special jars of colored makeup which they applied to their eyes, lips, cheeks, and nails. Greek men also applied flower-based oils to their skin. The eye creams, facial masks, and moisturizers that men are buying today are simply different versions of the same idea, one that began 12,000 years ago.

- ① appearance ② homes ③ relationships
④ healthcare ⑤ hobbies

26. 다음 글에서 필자가 주장하는 바로 가장 적절한 것은?

Who am I? This may sound like a question found on a freshman philosophy exam, but Socrates was serious when he told his students, "Know yourself." You would be foolish to buy a cow if you lived in an apartment. You would be equally foolish to invest in real estate if you needed constant access to your money. The first place an investor should look, then, is in the mirror. Do you see wrinkles? Maybe you are heading toward retirement and therefore need investments that provide you with a steady income. Do you see a young parent, who needs a lot of money for her daughter's education? Then you could accept high risk investment for a high return.

- ① 다양한 철학 서적을 읽어라.
② 외모로 사람을 판단하지 마라.
③ 은퇴 이후의 삶을 미리 준비해라.
④ 자녀의 경제교육에 많은 관심을 가져라.
⑤ 자신의 상황에 맞는 투자 방법을 선택해라.

28. What makes you yawn? Researchers from a North American university discovered the reason of yawning: to _____. During the experiment, they provided half of volunteers with a cold pack to hold to their forehead. None of them yawned, unlike the other half given a warm pack. This study proved that the temperature of the brain falls through breathing as it delivers cool blood to the brain. Additional cooling has the same effect, so people do not feel the need to yawn. In fact, our brain heats up as it burns as much as a third of all the calories we consume. In order to function more efficiently, the brain needs to be cool. Thus when people yawn, they instinctively increase blood flow, bringing in low temperature air. [3점]

- ① speed up our calorie burn
② remove waste from our blood
③ protect our brain from overheating
④ react to a boring and dull situation
⑤ increase our resistance to cold weather

29. Why do some people choose to know the truth about their health, and others refuse? People who _____ are more likely to agree to know about their health. To test this idea, researchers set up a scenario that mimicked an annual checkup. In this checkup, they told participants about a serious but fictional disease, and then asked whether the participants would like to be tested for it. Prior to the checkup, some participants were made to feel good about themselves while others were not. The subjects who had their self-esteem raised were more likely to want to be tested for it. Physicians say that early treatment is critical for many diseases, so helping people face potentially frightening information with a positive self-esteem increases their chances of survival. [3점]

① consider themselves a valuable person
② have had serious health problems
③ keep their emotions stable
④ are educated in health or medicine
⑤ watch movies about serious diseases

30. Races have first, second, and third prizes. This practice is the result of _____. In the early seventeenth century in Chester, England, the sheriff agreed to provide a silver trophy for the winner of a horse race and contracted with a silversmith to do the work. The silversmith's first trophy was unacceptable, and he was sent back for another try. The second one, too, was inadequate, and he was instructed to try a third time. The third trophy was fine, but now the sheriff had three trophies instead of one. In order not to be wasteful, the sheriff decided to award trophies to the first, second, and third place winners. [3점]

* sheriff: (잉글랜드·웨일즈에서) 주 장관

- ① a racer's violation of the game rules
- ② a sheriff's intention to win a horse race
- ③ the excessive competition in sports events
- ④ efforts to reduce the cost of making trophies
- ⑤ a silversmith's inability to satisfy his customer

“Art does not solve problems, but makes us aware of their existence,” a sculptor once said. Arts education, on the other hand, does solve problems. Years of research show that it is closely linked to almost everything that we say we want for our children. Involvement in the arts is associated with gains in math, reading, critical thinking, and verbal skills. Learning the arts can also improve motivation, concentration, confidence, and teamwork. A report about the visual arts argues that the pleasures and stimulation of the art experience do more than sweeten an individual's life. According to the report, they “can connect people more deeply to the world and open them to new ways of seeing,” creating the foundation to build up social bonds.

① the value of social interactions
② the advantages of arts education
③ ways to promote critical thinking
④ the characteristics of successful artists
⑤ the significance of intelligence in problem-solving

Native people create legends to explain unusual events in their environment. A legend from the Hawaiian island of Kauai explains ① how the naupaka flower got its unusual shape. The flower looks like half a small daisy. The legend says that the marriage of two young lovers on the island ② was opposed by both sets of parents. The parents found the couple together on a beach one day, and ③ to prevent them from being together, one of the families moved to the mountains, separating the young couple forever. As a result, the naupaka flower was separated into two halves; one half moved to the mountains, and the other half ④ staying near the beach. This story is a good example of a legend ⑤ which native people invented to make sense of the world around them.

35. Matthew Henson에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은?

Matthew Henson was born into a poor African-American family in Maryland in 1866. After his father died, he went to Washington, D.C. at the age of eleven. After working in a cafe for a while, he became a sailor. In 1887, Matthew was hired to be a servant to Robert Peary. When Peary planned a trip to Greenland, Matthew volunteered to go along. Matthew was able to communicate with the Inuit, the native people of the North. They taught him ways to survive in the arctic such as building snow houses and training sled dogs. On their third attempt on April 6, 1909, Matthew and Peary finally became the first men to reach the North Pole. In 1947, a biography of Henson called "Dark Companion" was published.

See if you can think of something really thoughtful to do for someone, and enjoy it for its own sake. It can be mowing your neighbor's lawn, or coming home early from work to give your spouse a break from the kids. When you complete your favor, see if you can feel the warmth of knowing you have done something for someone without expecting anything. If you practice, I think you will discover that the feelings themselves are reward enough. What interferes with this peaceful feeling is our expectation of receiving something in return. The solution is to notice these thoughts and gently dismiss them. In the absence of these thoughts, your positive feelings will return.

Every so often, a heartwarming news story tells of a shipwrecked sailor who was on the verge of drowning in a stormy sea. Suddenly, a dolphin popped up at his side and pushed the sailor safely to shore. It is tempting to conclude that dolphins must really like human beings, enough to save us from drowning. But wait—Are they actually intending to be helpful? To answer that question, we should know the opposite cases of shipwrecked sailors who have been pushed further out to sea by dolphins and never come back again. We don't know about those cases because the sailors don't live to tell us about their evil-dolphin experiences.

Clark's nutcrackers in North America survive by their remarkable memory. When food is abundant, a nutcracker hides nuts throughout the forest as a reserve for harder times. ① It hides at least 30,000 nuts in up to 5,000 small places each year. ② It is able to remember the location of about 75 percent of its hiding places. ③ The bird uses its powerful bill to twist open cones of pine trees and remove the nuts. ④ The interesting question is whether the remaining 25 percent is actually forgotten or whether it is deliberately not collected. ⑤ Interestingly, the birds seem to hide 25 percent more nuts than they normally need.

Since early Roman times some grain has been associated with the wedding ceremony. Wheat, a symbol of fertility, was carried in the bride's hand or worn around her neck.

- (A) During the reign of Queen Elizabeth I, wheat was no longer tossed at brides but was instead baked into small cakes that were then crumbled and tossed over the bride's head.
- (B) As the bride left the church, grains of wheat were tossed at her, and young girls rushed to pick up the grains that had actually touched the bride.
- (C) This change in ceremony left the wedding guests feeling deprived, since they had nothing to toss at the bride. Since at that time rice was cheap, clean, and white, it seemed a good substitute for the more expensive wheat cakes.

At first no one believed that the clock's bell could have been heard from so far away.

The expression, "saved by the bell," did not come from the world of boxing, where a downed fighter can be saved by the bell. It originated, instead, in the seventeenth century. (①) A guard at Windsor Castle was accused of being asleep on duty. (②) He denied the charge and kept pleading innocent. (③) He offered as proof of his innocence the fact that he had heard the bell in the clock tower of St. Paul's Cathedral strike thirteen times at midnight. (④) However, it was discovered that the clock had, in fact, struck thirteen times at midnight on the very night he was supposed to have fallen asleep on duty. (⑤) The guard was, of course, released, having been "saved by the bell."

Jonathan stretched his muscles. Each year, (a) he and his friends participated in the diving contest at the community pool. Divers from all over the city came to participate in the contest.

(B)

They waited for the winner to be announced. All the divers were shocked when the small boy's name was announced. The judge threw up his hands and said, "(b) His dive may not have been the cleanest, but it was the riskiest by far. I gave points for his courage and for trying." Jonathan walked away shaking his head, determined to do it differently next year.

(C)

All the divers got ready to start their routines. Jonathan performed (c) his dive and did well enough to move on to the final round, where the diver could select the dive of his or her choice. Thoughts of the final dive came into Jonathan's mind. All the divers gathered around discussing who was left to compete.

(D)

Jonathan noticed a small boy that had on an old swimsuit. (d) He laughed with his peers about how this boy managed to get into the final round. The boy was first, and he made his way up to the highest board. He made his dive and then sat down. It was a clumsy dive without much style. Jonathan was next. (e) He performed his dive perfectly.

[44~45] 다음 글을 읽고, 물음에 답하시오.

Dr. Robert Provine, who wrote an article on laughter, believes humans laugh primarily because it serves as a kind of "social glue" that keeps people connected to one another. We laugh with others because it makes us feel a bond with them and that bond in turn gives us a sense of trust and comfort. No matter how hard we try, we are unable to make ourselves laugh. Consequently, when we laugh, others can be certain that it is an honest reaction, and honesty is key when building and maintaining friendships.

Since laughter is seen as a social cue that we send to others, it can also help explain why it spreads to others. Studies have proven that when people see or hear something funny, they are 30 times more likely to laugh when they are with others than when they are alone. Wanting to be accepted by others is part of human nature. Nobody wants to feel left out, and _____ is a way to signal to others that you feel the way they do, which makes us feel more bonded to one another. The brain realized this a long time ago, and group laughter has occurred ever since.
